THE WAGES OF TIN

By Hal E. Roach

A young man takes his girl riding in a hired car. He can't drive very well and the car is somewhat the worse for wear when they get back. The boss of the place tells him to pay up or get beaten up. The young man steals the boss' money out of his pocket and buys one of the cars. He bends one of the fenders and when he hits it with a hammer the far falls entirely apart.
